English Entrance Exam

Reading Extract

Read this extract. It is about a girl whose best friend has moved away.

Glossary

conjugate – give the different forms of a verb

supernova – a star that suddenly increases in brightness because of a huge explosion

School's good. I get one hundred per cent in a maths test, finally learn how to conjugate German verbs and spend lunchtime in the library researching my favourite star, Alpha Centauri B.

When I know the canteen will be quiet, I go and get some lunch. It looks like almost 5 everyone's been chucked out, but some students from my year – Bella Lofthouse and her friends – are still sitting round a table while the lunchtime supervisors clean up. As I walk past, they glance over at me, and I see Bella's lips curve up in a smile. Quickly, I turn away. Bella is always laughing with her friends and she finds me particularly funny. The longer I hang around the more likely it is that she'll say something to me and somehow I'll end up looking 10 stupid. I grab the first sandwich I see – egg mayonnaise – pay for it, then walk straight out of the canteen.

It's at times like this that I miss Harriet. She was my best friend at school. OK, she was my only friend in or out of school, but that didn't matter because we were soul mates, and we did everything together – walking to school, eating lunch, talking for hours on the 15 phone, sleepovers... Harriet even went camping with me and Mum every summer. Then, one day, she told me that her mum and dad were talking about moving to New Zealand. Five months later, she was gone.

When a huge star dies, there is a massive explosion, a supernova, and later, all that's left is a dark, dense black hole where no light can get in or out. From brilliant lightness to 20 total darkness: that's what it felt like when Harriet left.

When I got over the shock of her going and looked around me, there didn't seem to be a place for me anywhere: everyone else was paired up or in groups. I did try to talk to people, wriggle into their conversations, but Harriet had always done the talking for both of us and I was out of practice. Plus, like I said, I was shocked when she went and feeling a bit 25 like a dark, dense black hole.

Who wants to be friends with a dark, dense black hole? No one!

All that darkness has gone now, but the friend-making moment seems to have passed by. Which is why, right now, I'm leaning against the wall by the girls' toilets eating an egg sandwich all on my own.

30 Like I said. Sometimes I miss Harriet.

Reading Section: spend 30 minutes answering these questions.

“When I got over the shock of her going and looked around me, there didn’t seem to be a place for me anywhere: everyone else was paired up or in groups. I did try to talk to people, wriggle into their conversations, but Harriet had always done the talking for both of us and I was out of practice. Plus, like I said, I was shocked when she went and feeling a bit like a dark, dense black hole.” (Lines 21 to 25)

How does the writer emphasise the character’s loneliness here?

Choose two examples and explain each one. Please use full sentences. There is a completed example to help you. (4 marks)

Example	Explanation
“wriggle into their conversations”	In this quotation, the character seems to be having trouble in talking to people. This is emphasised by the phrase ‘wriggle into their conversations’ because it suggests that she is having trouble finding a place to start conversations and get into friendship groups. The word ‘wriggle’ suggests a difficult movement, which further suggests her problems.

Now complete your own answers in this table.
