English Practice Section (5 minutes)

This practice section shows you examples of the types of questions you will encounter in the following English test.

Comprehension Example

Carefully read through the passage of writing and answer the questions that follow. Mark your chosen answer for each question in your answering booklet. You will have five options (A - E).

Vikings

The Vikings were a Scandinavian people from the North of Europe. They are famous for being great sailors and warriors. From the 8th to the 11th centuries, they travelled across Europe in their long ships, attacking and then settling in areas across the continent.

1

Example Question i

i) How did the Vikings travel across Europe?

- A. They walked
- B. In long boats
- C. In canoes
- D. They ran
- E. By car

The answer here is B. The Vikings travelled across Europe in “their long ships” which are the same as long boats.

Now try the following question. Remember to answer in your answering booklet.

Practice Question i

i) Where did the Vikings originate from?

- A. Southern Europe
- B. The continent
- C. The sea
- D. The 11th century
- E. Northern Europe

Missing Word Example

Choose the best word to complete the sentence so that it makes sense and is written in correct English.

Mark your chosen answer for each question in your answering booklet. You will have five options (A - E).

Example Question ii

ii) Mars is the fourth planet from the sun and the second-smallest planet in _____ solar system.

your	our	hour		owe	a

The answer here is B because 'our' is the word that makes the most sense in this sentence. Mars is a part of 'our' solar system, so it is unlikely to be 'your'. 'Owe' and 'hour' do not make sense in this sentence and finally, 'a' suggests that Mars can be found in all solar systems, which is not true.

Now try the following question. Remember to answer in your answering booklet.

Practice Question ii

ii) In English, Mars is named _____ the Roman god of war, and is often referred to as the "Red Planet".

before	because	if	by	after

Spelling/Punctuation Example

In each sentence, there might be a spelling or punctuation mistake.
Choose the letter which corresponds to the part of the sentence with the mistake (A-D).
If there's no mistake, mark 'N'.

Example Question iii

In the following sentence, there may be a spelling mistake:

iii) I triped and fell into the mud when I was walking home from school today.

A	B	C	D
---	---	---	---

The answer here is A as 'tripped' has been spelled incorrectly as 'triped'.

Now try the following question. Remember to answer in your answering booklet.

Practice Question iii

In the following sentence, there may be a punctuation mistake:

iii) "Why do you keep asking so many questions" he asked, obviously annoyed.

---	---	---	---

The Frozen North

by Richard Mayde

As we travel northward, leaving the sunny lands of the temperate zone, we come after a time to mighty and seemingly endless forests of pines and firs. Mile after mile, they stretch away in a lonely silence. The wintry gale that rages among them is answered only by the howl of the wolf, while a few bears, reindeer, and the arctic fox, alone of animals, find a home in their snowy depths.

Gradually as we go onward the trees are more stunted, gradually the pines and firs give way to dwarfed willows, and soon we come to the barren grounds, a vast region extending about the pole, and greater in size than the whole continent of Europe. 5

The boundary line of these barren grounds is not everywhere equally distant from the pole. The temperature of arctic lands, like that of other climes, is affected greatly by the surrounding seas and by ocean currents. In the sea-girt peninsula of Labrador, they reach their most extreme southerly point; and, as a rule, they extend southward where the land borders on the ocean, receding far to the north in the centre of the continents. 10

All this vast territory is a frozen waste, its only vegetation a few mosses and lichens. The few weeks of arctic summer do not allow the growth of even shrubs. As we advance through the forests, the trees are more and more dwarfed. Soon they become merely stunted stems, for though they put forth buds in summer, winter is upon them before wood can be formed. On the shores of the Great Bear Lake, it is said that a trunk a foot in diameter requires four hundred years for its formation. 15

A more desolate scene than the barren grounds in winter, it is difficult to imagine. Buried deep under the heaped up snows, with the winds howling across their dreary wastes, and an intense cold of which we have little idea, it is no wonder that almost no animal, save the hardy arctic fox, can find a subsistence upon them. 20

But no sooner does the returning sun bring the short weeks of summer than all this is changed, and they are the scene of varied life and activity. Vast herds of reindeer come from the forests to feed upon the fresh mosses, flocks of sea-birds fly northward to lay their eggs upon the rocks, and to seek their food in the rivers teeming with fish, while millions of gnats fill the air in clouds, enjoying to the utmost their short lives.

25

And their lives are indeed short, for it is almost July before the snows are gone and the hardy lichens can send forth shoots, and by September all vegetation is again beneath its snowy coverlet for another long nine months' sleep. The reindeer have, before this, made haste to seek the shelter of the forest, the bears have disposed of themselves for their winter sleep, the birds have all sought the milder region southward, and all is again silence and solitude.
